Kids Hope United names new Board member

CHICAGO (May 1, 2008)—Grace Didicher is the newest Board member for Kids Hope United, a private human service organization dedicated to protecting children and strengthening families.

“Grace attended our Bridgeport Child Development Center more than 20 years ago and her son now attends our recently opened center in the same area, so she is very familiar with the work we do at Kids Hope United,” said Executive Director Mark McHugh. “We’re very fortunate to have her on board.”

Didicher is the Chicago Operations Manager of commercial food equipment manufacturer, American Eagle Food Machinery Inc. Previously, she worked as the Area Service Coordinator for the Coca-Cola Company and Rotational Development Associate at Aon Corp.

Didicher graduated magna cum laude with a Bachelor of Science in economics and a Bachelor of Arts in international studies from the Huntsman Program for International Studies & Business at the University of Pennsylvania.

She speaks Mandarin Chinese and German, and co-authored “Portraits of Great American Scientists” with editor and Nobel Laureate Dr. Leon Lederman.
